JURY PROBES THE FIGHT TRUST FORMED BY RUEF

EDDIE GRANEY, "the honest blacksmith" and noted referee, who, as the paramount mover in the "Fight Trust" circle is liable to indictment for perjury by the Grand Jury. He has been given grace wherein to consider the advisability of retracting his former testimony. Last night the threatened indictment of Graney and fight promoter Coffroth was the principal topic of gossip in the cafes of the red-light district and there was much sympathy expressed for both of the magnets of the sporting world. The Balvedere case will be among the first taken up Tuesday when the Grand Jury meets, and the outcome of the proceedings is a source of much anxiety to the prize-fight promoters and their clientele.

Missing $3600, License Fees From Clubs, Is the Principal Object of Investigation.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—The sum of $3600, representing the difference in the amount paid into the city treasury by the promoters of professional prizefights in 1905 and 1906, has become an object of curiosity on the part of the grand jury. Last year, with four clubs in the field and each paying a license of $1200, the public treasury was enriched to the extent of $4800 by the art of the gladiator. When the trust was evolved at the beginning of the present year it operated as one club, and the city treasury profited only to the extent of $1200. The idea of a fight trust had its origin in the mind of Abe Ruef. That it was made possible for four clubs thus to hoodwink the city was also due to Ruef. If the city lost, it is argued that some one gained. It is the intention of the grand jury to clear up this point.

The so-called amateur clubs will form the most interesting feature of the grand jury investigation into the fighting game. The flagrant violation of the city law by which these clubs were allowed to pose as amateur clubs and pay a license of $100 a year instead of the $1200 demanded of professional clubs will be the basis for the inquiry. The only reason that has been advanced for this state of affairs is that city officials, past and present, are the managers of these clubs or are financially interested in them. In fact, so close is the relationship between the administration and the "amateur" clubs that a list of the directors reads like a roster of city officials.

CHIEFS OF THE CLUBS.

Former Police Commissioner O'Grady is the moving spirit of the Central club, Daniel O'Leary, chief deputy in the auditor's office, controls the Hawthorne club; Mario Bolo of the fire commission is the big mogul of the California Club, and Morris Levy, former secretary of the board of works, is the major domo of the Central club. That these promoters of "amateur" fights have become aware of the intentions of the grand jury is evinced by the hurried departures of Morris Levy for Los Angeles, where he will confer with Supervisor Sanderson, who had charge for the board of supervisors of all matters relating to the fighting game. Sanderson delegated a large part of his authority to Ruef, and Ruef turned it over to Morris Levy. In reality Levy appears to have been a sort of special ambassador accredited to the city administration as the representative of the promoters of the pugilistic contests.

EDWIN MEESE ENTERS CITY ASSESSORSHIP RACE

City Councilman Strongly Backed for Post Which A. H. Breed Will Soon Lay Down.

Edwin Meese, city councilman, has announced his candidacy for the office of city assessor and ex-officio city auditor, which the incumbent A. H. Breed, states he will not run for again. Upon the announced retirement of Breed from the office, the friends of Meese urged him to become a candidate, and this he has now done. Meese has been a city councilman for some years, and has always taken an active interest in public affairs.

ABOUT COUGHS

Some Reliable Local Advice.
In conducting a large drug business we naturally meet a great many people at this season of the year who suffer from coughs, colds and bronchial troubles.
If these troubles are easily controlled if the right means is taken to cure them, we want to say to the people of Oakland that we guarantee our cod liver preparation, Vinol will cure hanging-on colds, stubborn coughs, bronchial and lung troubles quicker than any preparation we have ever sold.
This is because Vinol contains no oil or grease to clog the system and upset the stomach, yet it does contain every one of the fifty odd medicinal curative elements actually taken from fresh cod's livers, with tincture of iodine. Vinol is not a patent medicine; and you know what you are taking, so without reservation we recommend Vinol to cure coughs, colds, bronchial troubles, increase the appetite, build up the run-down tired and debilitated, and create strength and renewed vitality for the aged.
If Vinol fails to do what we say we will refund every dollar paid for it.—The Owl Drug Co.
Note—While we are sole agents for Vinol in Oakland, it is now for sale at the leading drug store in nearly every town and city in the country. Look for the Vinol agency in your town.

POLICE HOT ON TRAIL OF LITTLE GIRL'S ASSAILANT

One Autoist Clears Himself of Suspicion in the Case of Rose Monk, of West Berkeley.

BERKELEY, Nov. 26.—Berkeley police believe that they are on the trail of the fellow who attacked ten-year-old Rose Monk, in West Berkeley, last Saturday afternoon. The suspect is not Lagarel Holloway, of Watsonville, as the number of the machine, 2916, was taken out in 1905 for another machine for Holloway, and has since been transferred. It is believed that the guilty person is a South Berkeley resident, twenty years of age, who has been in trouble with the police before.

According to the story now told by the girl, her assailant was apparently engaged in oiling his machine when she walked by him. Dropping his tools, the man grabbed her, holding his hand over her mouth, and carrying her to a near by vacant lot. There are no houses for a considerable distance away, so that even if the child had screamed, or made an outcry, she would scarcely have been heard. The scene of the occurrence, Parker street, near the Santa Fe tract, is one of the loneliest places within the town limits of Berkeley. When the girl reached home her face was smeared with the grease which the fellow had on his hands, and her skirts were torn.

LOOKS UPON LIGHTS OF CITY

A jolly far, Louis Lawson by name, came to Oakland yesterday from the training station on Goat Island. He went to the Bell theater last night and the performance exhilarated him to such an extent that he became noisy, and when admonished persisted in disturbing the remainder of the audience. Lawson was placed under arrest by Special Policeman Spear and this morning he was fined $5 by Police Judge Smith.

BLANCHE WALSH SECRETLY MARRIES ACTOR IN SOUTH

Most Popular Stage Favorite Becomes the Bride of William Travers in New Orleans, November 1.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 26.—The marriage of Blanche Walsh, the actress, to William Travers, a member of her company, was announced here today. The ceremony was performed

November 1, in the New Orleans city court, and the fact was kept secret by the court attaches until today, when the records were made public. Miss Walsh was playing here at the time.

S. S. LOUISIANA IS SIGHTED

Battleship Having President on Board Is Spoken Today Off Cape Henry.

CAPE HENRY, Va., Nov. 25.—The battleship Louisiana, having on board President Roosevelt and party, the conveying cruisers, Washington and Tennessee, were sighted at 8 a. m. today, inward bound.

The Louisiana passed in by the Capes at 9 o'clock, followed by the Tennessee. The wireless station here has been advised that the engine of the Washington is disabled and that she will not reach the Capes until about 1 o'clock this afternoon.

A later dispatch to the wireless station from the Washington, said: "All well on board."

The Louisiana proceeded up the Chesapeake Bay, and the Tennessee went into Hampton Roads.

MISHAP TO CRUISER.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 25.—An accident to the Washington was announced by wireless telegraphy from the cruiser Tennessee as she took leave of the Louisiana and steamed inward for the mouth.

The Washington is proceeding from the Capes under one engine. The details of her mishap are explained.

The United States weather observer at Cape Henry announced that the President's trip home was without accident of any kind other than the breakdown of the Washington, and that the President and party aboard of the Louisiana were well and had experienced a pleasant voyage up from Porto Rico.

The President and party, including Mrs. Roosevelt and maid, Surgeon General Rixey of the navy and Secretary M. C. Latta, will in all probability reach Washington late this evening on the yacht Mayflower, to which they transfer from the battleship Louisiana.

BRASSES WERE HEATED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A wireless message was received at the Navy Department today from Captain Adams, commanding the cruiser Washington, in which he states that he was compelled yesterday to stop the starboard engine of his ship because of hot brasses. He says that the engines sustained no serious injury, but he was unable to keep up with the speed of the Tennessee and the Louisiana and consequently had to drop several hours behind those ships.

Wille and His Correspondence School

Every kind of business is taught nowadays by correspondence so I am going to open up a "school of salesmen." There was once an old farmer who had a son and he told his father that he was going to learn how to plow by mail, so the old man took the boy out to the barn and showed him a team of horses and a plow and said: "Well, son this plowing by mail may be all right but I'll be damned if I can't show you how to plow with a team of horses and you will do more that way than you will with a bottle of ink—there are lots of so called salesmen who should be following a plow. You meet them in every store but this one, yet some of our boys need a few lessons in good common sense salesmanship, so here goes LESSON NO. 1. How to sell the man pulls out his watch and says he has to see his wife around the corner. Just get him off to one side, get his mind off the garment you want to sell—tell him that if he will just wait a few moments you will get your wife to come down to the store and meet her. If you haven't any wife just tell him that you would like to meet her yourself—then talk about the weather and the price of coal and say that he had a frost this morning. Always have the garment in sight so he can see the color, tell him that the price of wool is going up and your boss made a lucky purchase when he bought that suit. Get his mind back quickly to the sale of what you want to sell—talk little but convincingly—impress him with your ability—and watch him dig up the coin. Also compare time with him and ask if his watch is right—get next to him and you will make a steady customer for yourself and the house. Hint No. 4—Two or three nice caps Parafail and golf style—50c quality—big line here and very acceptable to any boy—one of the reasons why you couldn't get in the Juvenile Department Saturday afternoon and evening. Boys are not so particular about what they receive Christmas just so they can wear it—but a smile won't go on Christmas morning—and besides that they must have garments bearing the name of

ELLSWORTH REARRESTED

After serving his sentence in this city, Oliver Ellsworth, wanted in San Mateo county for defrauding an innkeeper, was arrested by Under Sheriff Albert Mansfield of that county and taken to Redwood City to stand trial. It is said that the San Mateo authorities severely criticized Chief of Police Wilson of this city for not turning Ellsworth over to them. Chief Wilson stated, however, that the law concerning the defrauding of an innkeeper had been repealed and he therefore could not turn Ellsworth over to the San Mateo authorities. Chief Wilson notified them, however, that they could arrest Ellsworth as soon as he was released from custody in this city. This was done yesterday morning and Ellsworth will have to stand trial on the defrauding an innkeeper charge.

ROBERT EDESON AS COLLEGE BRED HERO

Robert Edeson, as the college-bred Indian hero, Strongheart, in the comedy drama of that name, by William C. De Mille, is the attractive offering announced at the Macdonough theater for tonight and all this week. Mr. De Mille has laid the scenes of "Strongheart" at Columbia University and furnishes a vivid and highly amusing picture of college life. Strongheart is an Indian; the son of a chief, who, through his prowess on the football field has become a hero to his classmates at Columbia. His love for the sister of his chum forms the motive for the play, which although serious in its problem is related amid scenes of such bright, breezy comedy that vividly photographs college life. "Strongheart" deserves the term, comedy drama. Mr. Edeson has revealed himself as a character actor of note and has widely increased the popularity won by him in "Hanson's Polly" and "Soldiers of Fortune." "Strongheart" scored the dramatic hit of last season in New York, Boston and Chicago, where it played long and prosperous engagements. There will be a matinee Thanksgiving Day, Saturday and Sunday.

MAD MAHOUTS FORFEIT THEIR BAIL

H. Muller, G. Davis, C. J. Peterson and Henry Olsen, who were arrested Saturday night for exceeding the speed limit in their automobiles, forfeited their bail in the police courts this morning. B. Jones appeared before Police Judge Smith and pleaded guilty. Judgment was suspended in his case. William McDuffie, arrested for the same offense, was fined $5 by Police Judge Samuels.

The police intend to keep up their crusade against the reckless autoists who rush up and down Telegraph avenue at an excessive rate of speed, without regard for life or limb.

BURGLAR IS BOUND OVER IN $2000 BAIL

After his preliminary examination this morning, Police Judge Smith's court on a charge of burglary, Hugh Sullivan was held over to the Supreme Court in $2000 bail. Sullivan has confessed to stealing a quantity of tools from a new building at Eighth and Harrison streets. Sullivan was arrested in a second-hand store by Detectives Flynn and Quigley, while he was trying to dispose of his loot.

AUGUST WOLF DEAD.

ALAMEDA, Nov. 25.—August Wolf, a native of Germany, aged 60 years, who has made Alameda his home for twenty-two years, died this morning at his residence, 333 Santa Clara avenue. He was the father of Mrs. Joseph Krieg of this city.

Moneyback wasn't a word. Schilling's Best had the meaning and made it.

DIES UNDER SEVERE OPERATION

ALAMEDA, Nov. 25.—Robert Stimson, a young pharmacist of this city, who was to have made Mrs. L. Covell his bride during the Christmas holidays, died this morning after an illness of two weeks, at the Alameda Sanitarium. He was taken down with appendicitis two weeks ago, and an operation was performed. Stimson had been a clerk at the Prosser pharmacy for a number of months, and was very well known. REV. FATHER YORKE GRILLS THE GRAND JURY

By the REV. FATHER PETER C. YORKE, in the San Francisco Leader of November 24th.

In the midst of the wild babel raised by the newspapers in this city it is well for thoughtful citizens to put to themselves the question: "Who are the criminals?"

The outsider who reads our journals may be well pardoned for believing that the whole able-bodied population of San Francisco is careering down Market street in the one wild charge after one solitary small man and that from a hundred thousand sanded throats rise the cry: "Stop Thief."

Even if this were true, it might well be the part of the wise man to withdraw from the tumult and to ask himself the question: "Who are the criminals?"

It is to be expected that in every aggregation of human beings there should be criminals. For this are the laws constituted and the magistrate beareth the sword. The murderer who is taken in his crime and the thief who is caught in his thieving make satisfaction to the law. The fruit that ripens on the gallows—that is the sacrifice that men offer to what they call Justice, the felon that rots in the cell—that is the sweet incense in the nostrils of the idol that the State calls law. By such offerings is satisfaction made. Murderer and thief pay the penalty in heaped-up measure, pressed down and flowing over.

Such criminals do not and cannot harm the State. They are within the power of the State, and when they have received and undergone their punishment, against them the State has nothing. We need never be afraid of the thief and the murderer. Their destiny is in our hands.

Who then are the criminals?

The State is established that equal and indifferent justice may be done between man and man. He who perverts judgment—he is the enemy of the State—he is the criminal.

We judge of the civilization and culture of a people by their attitude towards justice. No matter how rich, how powerful, that nation is barbarous where an accused man is denied a hearing. Where sentence is given by faction or favoritism, by bribery or hate, by caprice or passion, there are the fountains of justice poisoned. In that people either liberty has never existed or she has been done to death.

For what have our fathers struggled in every generation?—as it that we might have a vote or enjoy high office? A vote is a plaything they give children, high office is only for the few. What they did struggle for was greater than this: it was that each man might possess his life in peace, his store in security and order his ways conformable to a just law. The equal protection of the State and of the machinery of the State for all men—that is what touches every man and for that did the fathers fight.

Let us ask the people of San Francisco what is the essence of liberty for the individual? Is it not that he should have fair play?

What is the essence of fair play? Is it not that he be permitted to defend himself if he is attacked?

Is it fair play to tie your opponent's hands behind his back and then strike him in the face?

Is it fair play to gag your opponent's mouth and then accuse him of every crime under the sun?

Among the liberties that our fathers fought for and won was this, that the meanest and most helpless person accused of crime should be presumed innocent until convicted after a fair trial.

This presumption is of the very essence of our liberties. Who is safe if mere accusation is to be taken as proof? Is there any man so high that calumny may not reach him? Is there any man so holy that slander may not surround him? Even the Son of God was caught in the net of false witness and the disciple is not above his master nor the servant above his lord.

It took many a sharp struggle to enshrine among our liberties the principle that every man is entitled to a fair trial by a jury of his peers. The very pith and marrow of a fair trial is that the accused should have the right to defend himself. The lowest loafer picked up off the streets may claim from the court the assistance of counsel. If he cannot afford such assistance the State will pay for it.

Is it then fair play that a man should be called a criminal before he has been convicted by a court?

The San Francisco newspapers do this, but the newspapers never play fair and no one expects them to play fair. We know their management too well.

But should a lawyer do it? Should the officer of a court do it? Should a man who knows the laws and is sworn to observe them do it? Then there is no criminal within or without San Quentin so dangerous as he.

Is it fair play that a man should be branded with crime and not be given a chance to say a word in his own behalf?

In the most unjust trial that is recorded in the annals of humanity the Accused was at least asked "Hearst thou not what great things these witnesses against thee?"

Is it fair to wait until a man is ten thousand miles away and then without giving his friends a chance to say a word in his defense to proclaim him to all the world as a thief?

THE MAN THAT ANNOUNCED THAT MAYOR SCHMITZ WOULD BE ARRESTED ON HIS ARRIVAL IN NEW YORK AND DRAGGED ACROSS THE CONTINENT IN HANDCUFFS WITH HIS WIFE SHOULD BE SCOURGED NAKED THROUGH THE STREETS OF SAN FRANCISCO.

Bartley Oliver, you are the son of a Claddagh fisherman. Your people, more than any other people, even in Ireland, have known the burden of unjust law. How would you like to lead your wife and children down the gang plank and see below the officer of the law waiting with the handcuffs that your personal enemies had prepared for you? Pray God every day that He may not mete unto you the measure you have meted out to Schmitz. Pray God that your children may not grope in the gutter for a crust of mercy and find it not. The Lord is God, mighty and jealous, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate Him.

But it is the Grand Jury. The Grand Jury is one of our institutions. This is the height of injustice to use the forms of law to perpetrate wrong. SUMMUM JUS, SUMMA INIURIA. The greater the right, the greater the injustice. Bold, brutal injustice we can cope against, injustice that clothes itself in the mantle of right leaves us powerless. What has been the crowning injustice of England in Ireland? Has it not been the partisan judge and the packed jury? In San Francisco the partisan judge and the packed jury have been declared the instruments of civic righteousness. Out upon you Scribes and Pharisees. Ye are the criminals.

But the Grand Jury only indicts; a public trial must follow. Only indicts! Is it not indictments alone that the enemies of Schmitz and Ruef are looking for? Is not indictment flashed to the ends of the earth as equivalent to conviction? Who cares about the trial? The indictment stands, it brands with indelible shame. If the Jetty Jury acquits, the machine-made cry goes on incessantly that the Petty Jury has been bought.

The indictment is procured by gathering together the irresponsible slander of a slanderous town and putting it in secret conclave before a body of men nominated by judges months before, and as likely as not nominated in pursuance of a corrupt conspiracy. Who is safe from such a tribunal? Remember, it is the indictment that counts. The men that consent to an indictment procured by political and personal hates, they are the criminals.

The prostitution of Grand Jury methods to the gratification of public and private spite have already caused the abolition of the institution elsewhere. It is time for the citizens of California to awake to the danger to their liberties that threatens them in the misuse of this form of the law. It is time to demand the reformation or extinction of a body that can be made the tool of malevolent and conscienceless politicians and that can stigmatize citizens as criminals without giving them a chance to utter a word in their own defense. The newspapers have overshot the mark. No matter what Ruef or Schmitz may have done the consciousness is growing slowly but surely among the people that Spreckels and Burns, Langdon and Heney, the Call, the Chronicle, the Examiner and the Bulletin—they are the criminals.

TESTIMONY OF PHYSICIANS

Sensation Given in Autopsy

Not long ago today a young man named John J. Gillette, of the city of Oakland, was found dead on the sidewalk. He was about 25 years of age, and was a well-known and popular young man. He was found by a police officer, who called the coroner. The coroner's jury found that he died of a heart attack, caused by a sudden increase in blood pressure. The autopsy revealed that the heart was greatly enlarged, and that the lungs were congested. The doctor who performed the autopsy, Dr. J. H. Duggan, said that he had never seen such a case before. He said that the man's death was a tragedy, and that it was a warning to all young men to take care of their health.

The autopsy also revealed that the man had a high blood pressure, and that he had been suffering from a heart disease. The doctor said that the man's death was a tragedy, and that it was a warning to all young men to take care of their health. BEST HUSTLERS WILL BE "TRIBUNE" PRIZE WINNERS

LETTER CARRIERS ARE INTERESTED.

City Mail Carriers Have Entered the Contest With the Vehemence of Opposing Athletes.

To be one of the successful ones in THE TRIBUNE contest requires only a little hustling on the part of contestants who have submitted their own names or those whose friends have rallied to their aid. This is realized by the mail carriers who have entered the contest with a vim worthy of the energy exercised by opposing football teams or the vehemence of youthful baseball players. Imitate the mail distributors and win one of the prizes THE TRIBUNE places within your reach. To obtain subscriptions to THE TRIBUNE is not difficult and if it was the votes allowed for the subscription would easily repay the hustler for his labor. Only a few votes are credited to a number of the contestants and a few others have but one vote in their favor. All have an equal chance. Those who adopt "hustle" as their slogan will be the victors. This is only the first week of the contest and they who have been acquiring votes secretly and retain them to surprise the contest editor by presenting a large batch at once should present them now. If their names or the names of friends attain the highest rung it would be an inducement to friends to keep them there. Votes are valuable. Clip them from THE TRIBUNE and send them in to help one or more of the legion of hustlers. By the end of the week the contest will be in full swing. If you have not entered send in your name now before the astounding figures shown at the week end discourage you. All candidates are requested to send in their addresses and call at the business office of THE TRIBUNE to obtain blanks needed by contestants. MANNER OF VOTING. A coupon good for one vote will be published in each issue of THE TRIBUNE until the end of the contest. This coupon, if clipped and sent to the Contest Manager of THE TRIBUNE, will count as one vote for the contestant named therein. There is also another way of securing votes and that is on subscriptions. Votes will be given on all paid-in advance subscriptions as follows: One month, 50c . . . 25 extra votes Three months, $1.50 . . . 100 extra votes

Six months, $3.50 . . . 200 extra votes One year, $7.50 . . . 1000 extra votes As these subscriptions are handed in, certificates will be issued good for the number of votes called for in the above schedule. The name of the candidate to be voted for must be written on the certificate when issued and is non-transferable, but if the party to whom it is issued so desires, the certificate need not be voted at the time of issuance, but may be withheld until the last day of the contest. The votes published in the paper, however, must be voted within ten days. If you do not fully understand about this, or if you wish information about the best way to go about it to win, call at the TRIBUNE office or write to Contest Manager, care TRIBUNE.

WHY AUTHORESS FAVORS TRIAL MARRIAGE PLAN

Mrs. Elsie Clews Parsons Gives Her Reasons for Encouraging Temporary Ties.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—There was widespread comment recently on the remarkable book entitled "The Family," written by Mrs. Elsie Clews Parsons, in which the author makes her startling suggestion about trial marriages as a means of warding off marital infidelity. In addition to the exposition of this plan, she sets forth many interesting data relating to the history of marriage in all classes of society since civilization began, and in all countries. She treats the subject in all its bearings with the dispassionate calm of a scientific investigator. These are some extracts taken at random from the book:

"The family has been only one of the many forms of association that have served in the evolution of life. The ability to leave progeny is one of the success winning characters in the struggle of natural selection. This ability is greatly enhanced through the family. It will be our task to learn, through a study of the family structure, how in the case of offspring the function of the family form of association has been performed."

"In several species the male helps to place the extruded eggs in the hatching sacks. A few species of oviparous snakes incubate their eggs. Among birds the incubating habit is fully developed. The lowest species scrape holes in the sand for their eggs, and the males are the sole or chief brooders. Many of the young of the higher species are hatched blind, all are hatched naked and dependent upon their parents for warmth and nourishment."

"Among mankind as among the lower animals, the duration and nature of parental care in general more or less correspond to the period and degree of immaturity characteristic of the offspring."

"Infanticide of the surviving infant of a mother dying in childbirth or while the child is at breast is a common practice. In this case it is sometimes believed that the spirit of the mother demands the company of the child. Where infants are absolutely dependent upon their mother's milk, and where the period of lactation is long, it frequently happens that a child is born before an older child is or can be weaned. If the mother cannot nurse both the younger is killed. Akin to this motive is the killing of a younger child in the belief that his vitality will pass into the body of an older and sicker child. Lack of nourishment is one of the reasons at times for the widespread practice of killing one of twins."

THE LAW OF ELOPEMENTS.

"In spite of established custom or law, elopements occur in almost all societies. The treatment accorded the eloping couple if caught, or when voluntarily returning home, and the position given to their offspring, indicate the strength of the customary parental right of disposal in marriage."

"Besides the individual protests of an eelopment, there are various socially recognized restrictions upon the parents' exclusive right of choosing mates for sons and daughters. Here we shall only consider the extent of a girl's say in the matter. Similar but greater privileges exist in the case of sons. Moreover, in a great many cases where girls have little or no sexual choice sons are unhampered."

"While a girl may not be allowed to choose her husband, she may not be compelled to marry against her will. If betrothed during childhood, she may, for example, when marriageable, refuse to carry out the contract. It may be customary for her parents to consult her in regard to the choice of a husband. She may choose her husband herself, but parental consent is necessary to the validity of the marriage when she is under a certain age."

"Women or divorced women are frequently dependent upon parents, yet they have, as a rule, more choice in their second than in their first marriage."

"The history of the bride price and of its passing into forms of dowry has important bearing upon conjugal, as well as upon filial relations. There are rare cases of what may be called, in analogy to the bride price, a groom price. It is a compensation, and this is sometimes the explanation of the bride price also. Again, where the dowry is on a big scale, and where it is practically a settlement for the benefit of the husband, it has been suggested that in this practice we have a form of husband purchase analogous to wife purchase."

"Numerical disproportion between the sexes, due to female infanticide, religious celibacy, constant warfare, an excess of male births, special economic conditions, is a factor in polygamy. Customs of conjugal abstinence at stated periods, and desires for children, are also factors. Although polygamy is more advantageous to offspring than restricted, very unstable monogamy, yet it probably secures less parental care for offspring than developed or enduring monogamy."

AN ANALYSIS OF COURTSHIP.
 "Whether or not sexual choice has been as important a factor in evolution as has been sometimes claimed, its importance as a social factor is great—greater, probably, than we yet surmise, for, from this point of view the subject has never been adequately examined. Among mankind as among the lower animals, incidents of courtship commonly indicated the nature of the traits which are prized in mating. The accepted suitor is frequently he who excels in purposeful feats of strength, speed, cunning, etc., or he whose presents are the richest, or whose display of wealth or social distinction is the most alluring."

"Betrothal and marriage ceremonial may be similarly suggestive of preferred conjugal characteristics. In this connection regulations of the bride price based on the rank of the bridegroom's father, on the bride's previous condition of maidenhood, widowhood, etc., on her personal traits, strength, etc., are significant. Widows, for example, in view of their acquired skill in domestic work, sometimes bring a higher price than virgins. Virgins, on the other hand, may, where chastity has a distinctly marketable value, sell for more than widows."

"We should note that the struggle that goes on between members of the same sex for desirable mates is not limited to the first period of courtship. It continues throughout the mating period of life, although it is to a considerable extent conditioned by social usage. A man may have to fight to keep as well as to get his wife. She may be captured, or through magic charmed away from him, or she may voluntarily leave him for another. A wife may on her side have to contend with other women, both in and out of wedlock for her husband's favor."

"Where marriage by purchase is well developed, the custom of negotiating a marriage through marriage brokers is very general. As it is not uncommonly thought derogatory to the woman's family to marry her off for less than the customary bride price, female as well as male celibacy may even result from an inelastic, so to speak, bride-price."

"It is necessary at this point to consider briefly the system of primitive thought known as totemism. A totem is a class of objects—animals, plants, stones, etc., or, in rare instances, artificial things—which are believed to be intimately and helpfully related to a man. There are three kinds of totems—individual, sex and clan totems. The individual totem is of interest in a study of the family, from the fact that it is sometimes inherited by a son, a nephew, etc., and that the securing of a totem for a child at birth or later is a matter of parental solicitude."

"The sex totem is a striking illustration of the differentiation of interests according to sex. Women sometimes defend their totem with considerable force and acrimony against the attack of men, and vice versa. Totemism is most widespread and most influential in the clan organization. The clan totem is reputed to be the common ancestor of all the members of the clan."

THE GOAL OF EDUCATION.

"We have been led to believe that character, finely developed womanhood or manhood, is the goal of our education. We have also been taught that we owe services to our community. In the ideas that through the making of our own character we are making that of our children, and that successful child-rearing is one of the most, if not the most, important service we can render society the two aims of our education combine. I doubt not that this point of view will be reassuring to those of you who are impatient, as most of us have been at one time or another in our prolonged and seeming over-individualistic educational period, to take up the business of life for which you have been so long preparing."

"Much depends upon the outcome of

CHORUS GIRL TO BE A NURSE AND PHYSICIAN

Pretty Lucy Jane Johnstone's Absence From the Stage Exposes Her Secret.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—It was through her absence from the matinee of the "Blue Moon" company at the Casino that it became known that Miss Lucy Jane Johnstone, playing a small part, is studying to be a trained nurse and physician.

Miss Johnstone, not appearing in the cast, some one else took her place, and when she appeared at night she was directed to give her excuse personally to the manager. Not showing up at performances is a serious offense in the theatrical business, and when questioned as to the reason, she hesitated and finally said:

"I was attending a patient."

"A what?"

"A patient. You see I have been putting in my spare time for a long period studying medicine, and I am a nurse. If I had attended this matinee I should have missed an important lecture and also should have neglected one of my patients. I knew my part could be filled without any serious trouble, and that I probably would not be missed. So I took the chance. I will not let it happen again. No one has been told of my ambition, and I am not anxious for it to get out."

"You see I was ill in Philadelphia, and while in the hospital there I got greatly interested in a little nurse that seemed to like the work. It occurred to me that I might become a trained nurse, and also a physician in time, and I have been studying ever since."

"My vacation in 1904 was passed at Pease's Island, in Casco Bay, just across from Portland, in Maine, and while there I met Drs. O'Neill and Keating, and through them got the chance to enter the Maine Ear and Eye Infirmary in that city as a nurse. Because I did not want them to know that I was an actress, and my stage friends to know that I was studying medicine, I entered under an assumed name."

"The next summer I wanted to accompany Lieutenant Perry on his trip north on the Roosevelt, and it was a bitter disappointment when I was denied the chance. It would have enabled me to complete my scientific studies and to have been useful as a nurse."

"When the Spanish war broke out I had made all my plans to go to the front as a nurse. My father got word of it and wired to Washington to stop me on the ground that I was not of age. I was going to the Philippines, but this ended it. I am pretty well along now and by next summer shall leave the footlights for good."

Miss Johnstone is a native of Hamilton, Ont., where she was born in 1884, but has lived most of her life in Syracuse. Her first appearance was in the Hopper revival of "Wang." She plays the part of Chua in the "Blue Moon." She always carries her medicine box with her and, when coming out of a theater in Chicago last winter who found a crowd around an old man in the street. He had been knocked down by an auto. She attended him till the arrival of an ambulance.

SEEKS THE SIMPLE LIFE AT COST OF DIVORCE

present in the economic independence of women, a matter which is in turn dependent upon the general outcome of the labor question.

"Voluntarily childless marriage, or the restriction of child-bearing to the birth of one or two children, a much more general occurrence, is no doubt a very serious condition and one, too, that seems to be on the increase. Unfortunately it seems to affect the classes who, for the sake of the cultural progress of the race, would do well to have more numerous offspring."

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—The simple life proved the rock on which Alfred Hall's domestic happiness was wrecked. He preferred existence on a farm to an intellectual wife and the whirl of city life, according to Mary Little, Hall, who yesterday was granted a divorce by Judge Windes.

When the Halls were married September 8, 1886, the complainant was a school teacher, and the two left their home town, Fairmount, Neb., and came to Chicago. Here Mrs. Hall resumed teaching. Her husband became discon-

REBECCA AT 96 TELLS HOW SHE WAS WOODED

Widow of the War of 1812 Is Active, Spry, Remarkably Healthy and Happy.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Aunt Rebecca Smith, a widow of the war of 1812, who has passed ninety-six milestones on the road of life, is the oldest inhabitant of the Methodist Episcopal Church Home at Amsterdam avenue and Ninety-second street. She is likewise its particular pride and joy, and will hold the post of honor at a housewarming, which will rejoice the hearts of the ninety-eight old women and ten old men who find care, comfort and infinite content beneath their common roof-tree.

Aunt Rebecca, quaint and sweet and bright, with a white frilled cap over the hair of mixed brown and gray, and a sparkle in the blue eyes behind the spectacles, finds life still the glad, sweet song. She has all the beauties of age, without its disfigurements. Her face is so gently wrinkled that it seems but an emphasis of her smile. Her only disability, if it may be called so, is her deafness. But without Aunt Rebecca's intelligent "Eh?" and look of pleasantly quizzical inquiry, the conversation would be incomplete.

AUNT REBECCA THE QUEEN.

The fourth home of the home is devoted to those whose advancing age makes too much exercise impractical. It has its own special dining-room, and of this little coterie Aunt Rebecca is queen. Promptly as the bell rings the little old lady, trim and neat of figure as when she captivated Caleb Smith, rises from her rocking chair, ties a spotless white apron over her black dress, smooths her cap strings and settles her shawl before walking across the hall to her meal.

Her step is still light and firm and the arm she leans upon a courtesy rather than a support.

Aunt Rebecca's room—each of the old ladies has her own room, with her pictures and knick-knacks about—was flooded with sunshine when she sat for her picture the other day, leaning forward at the close of the operation to say to the photographer as she peered through the lens: "I don't see it. Where did you put it?"

It is twenty years since she was photographed and the snapshot is a curiosity.

"I was born in 1810," said Aunt Rebecca, "back in Jerusalem, in Jersey—ever hear of it?—and my father's name was Loree. There were three brothers and three sisters of us, but they have all died off and left me alone. And, presently, I suppose, the Father will say: 'Child, come home, to me, too.'"

HER FIRST HUSBAND.

"When did I marry? When I was about twenty, I guess. My first husband's name was William Runyon—that's an old Jersey name, too—and he was a hatter."

When William Runyon died, leaving his wife with one daughter, she removed to her sister's house in Newark. It was here that she met Caleb Smith and the memory of that wooing, told with infinite humor, is still one of her tenderest reminiscences.

Caleb was a veteran of the war of 1812, who had lost wife and children. He had looked at the comely widow many times, but he was a man of few words, and his manner of coming to the point was characteristic. Aunt Rebecca's version is as follows:

"'Ain't you tired of living alone?' says Caleb."

"'I get along,' says I."

"'When will you tell me?' says Caleb."

"'On Saturday,' says I."

In the few days that intervened Rebecca went to visit her mother. When she returned Caleb was there and she said simply:

"'I've made up my mind.'"

Aunt Rebecca laughed delightedly when she told how her daughter, Jane, then seventeen, decided what to call Caleb.

"She called him Dad, because a dad he was, though he wasn't her dad, and she couldn't call him Father."

Caleb had two trades, that of a shoemaker and that of a jeweler.

"And when he pulled those tiny pins out of a watch he'd say: 'Rebecca, don't move a foot! We wanted no dust, you see.'"

For some years they lived in Durham, N. Y. Then the young daughter married and died. Caleb passed away, and forty-seven years ago Aunt Rebecca, always frail and then believed to be especially so, entered the Methodist Episcopal Church Home. The building was then on Forty-second street, near Seventh avenue.

As she had cared for her family, so she cared for the old men and women about her. Her activity, cheerfulness and kindly nature made her a general favorite. She smoothed many a dying man's and woman's pillow in those long years. She speaks of "doctoring" with respect, but tells with a twinkle in her eye how her husband was cured of chills and fever by a very simple expedient.

"Met a man who told him to turn his shirt. He did and he never had that disease again," said Aunt Rebecca.

The home was started fifty-six years ago by a group of women, among whom was Mrs. Lemuel Bangs, who remained its president till last August, when at the age of ninety-two she died after only a week's illness. Well and happy at her advanced age she was indefatigable in her efforts for her charges in the home, whom she visited constantly.

The home, its president and its inmates grew old together, welded in a bond of perfect sympathy, and the home today remains Mrs. Bang's most fitting monument.

The building stretches the length of the block, has its chapel, its parlors and reading rooms for the old people, and its every apartment is delightfully light and airy. With the staff its present personnel is 118. Since July the entire building has been renovated, repapered and painted. Mrs. Juliet S. Marsh, the matron, so well engineered this great undertaking that no illness or death resulted among the guests.

Another of the home's celebrities is Mrs. Kelly, who at ninety-two uses no glasses and does fine sewing.

Supported by the various Methodist Episcopal churches for their aged and infirm members, as well as by voluntary contributions, all the inmates are guests in the honest sense of the word, with an absence of red tape and an atmosphere of a real home.

The housewarming will be made the occasion of a fair, for which the old ladies are busily and happily sewing.

RICH FARMER WANTS BRIDE

Rancher is 66 and "as Frisky as a Yearling Colt," He Declares.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Nov. 24.—After accumulating a fortune at farming, Sam Mull tired of hard work and went to Dayton O., to live. Something more than a year ago he became a widower. Forty years of happy wedded existence made it impossible for him to live alone, and he returned here to dwell and to find a suitable mate.

Last week he advertised for a wife, offering to share with the "right party" his broad acres in Shelby and Rush counties and his houses in Dayton and other Ohio cities. He supposed that there would be no applicants for at least a week, and he was surprised when he received at Dayton, O., where he had gone, the following telegram from a close friend in Shelbyville, who was looking after his matrimonial interests:

"Come home, Sam; good prospects in sight."

It was enough to surprise and elate any wife-hunter. He telegraphed back that he would come the first of the week.

Sam Mull wears chin whiskers and carries a bank account that is well up in figures. Admitting that he is sixty-six he adds in the same breath, "But I'm as frisky as a yearling colt, boys, I've never been sick a day in my life and I'll live thirty years more if I live a day." He wears tailor-made clothes and an Alpine hat that has a fancy band on it. His friends in Shelby county tell him he is "foxy." And he likes it.

"Perhaps it isn't just the proper carper to be advertising for a wife," he said the other day when he put the advertisement in the local paper, "but what else can I do? I'm a busy man and I haven't got the time to be running around over the country begging first this woman and then that to marry me. Besides, I'm not up on this new fangled courting that you read about in the Sunday papers."

"Take a man like myself, who has worked hard all his life and has been contented and expressed a longing to return to 'the farm.'"

"We finally separated in 1895," said the complainant. "Alfred insisted, and he is now on his father's farm, four miles from Fairmount. I'm still teaching school."

Faithful to one woman, and it's out of the question. I'd make a pretty mess of it, wouldn't I? I'll try the newspapers every time. I know there are plenty of wives and old maids right here in Shelby county who would have me if they only knew that I was on the hunt for a wife."

Thereupon he left the newspaper office and prepared for a brief visit in Dayton, O.

Mr. Mull hadn't been out of the city an hour before Miss Bettie Hopper appeared at the newspaper office in answer to the advertisement and offered herself as a candidate for the degree of "Mrs. Mull."

Her hair was parted in the middle and patted down. In her ears she wore earrings about the size of walnuts. Around her neck was a string of massive beads. Her carefully pressed black dress was buttoned up the back and she wore "congress" shoes. Altogether she impressed one as being a nice lady who had had far more experience with housework than with society. She puckered up her mouth when she talked and smiled when she was silent.

"I'm not a poor lone woman," she said; "I have property that makes me a good living. But I want to get married. If Sam Mull really wants a good wife who can cook him meals what will make his mouth water and sew buttons on his clothes, tell him I'm the woman he's looking for."

Mr. Mull's confidential friend and matrimonial adviser was immediately sent for. He talked with Miss Hopper. He was almost cruel, he was so outspoken.

"Married or single?" he began.

"Single, but I had a chance once. It was in the summer of 1880 that my intended sickened and died. He was a most noble."

"Never mind that, Miss Hopper; your age."

Here she fumbled, but quickly recovered.

Between 45 and 50."

"Your parents living?"

"No, mamma, died in 1880, just a month before my betrothal."

"How old was she when she died?"

"In her seventy-seventh year."

Mull's friend gave a low whistle. Then he took a pencil and did some quick figuring.

"She was about fifty-five years old when you were born, eh?"

Miss Hopper nodded.

"I'll lay your case before Mr. Mull just as soon as he comes back from Dayton. I'll do all I can for you."

"I wish you would," said Miss Hopper, arising to go. There was real earnestness in her voice.

The Coal Combine's Cinch.

The companies who control the local coal market have suddenly advanced the price of coal in carload lots three dollars a ton. Their excuse for doing this is the increased cost of labor. It is doubtful if the entire labor cost of mining and handling coal till it reaches the retailer exceeds three dollars a ton. The labor cost of mining coal is less than a dollar a ton on an average. It is therefore fairly questionable if the excuse is valid.

However, there are other phases to this sudden and heavy increase in the price of fuel worthy of consideration. The winter season has set in with unusual coldness. Fuel is not only indispensable, but the demand for it is unusually heavy. Because of the season people must have coal. Because the weather is unusually cold, they are compelled, for the sake of comfort to consume a larger quantity than usual.

As the agents of the coal combine admit that there is no shortage in the supply, it is not difficult to figure out the proposition as it really is. It may be summed up thus:

The weather is cold.

People must have fuel and lots of it.

The combine controls the supply, hence the advance in price.

The factors of the problem are an unrestricted monopoly on one hand and stern necessity on the other; to which may be added the increased capacity of the public to pay for what it wants and must have.

Of course, the coal companies are justified in adding the increased cost of labor to the price of coal, but they are not justified in adding three times the increased labor cost; by doing that they are attempting to shoulder the blame for an exaction off on others. The pretense that the three dollars added to the price of coal is to be charged to the increased wages of labor is made to give apparent justification for a raise that the public cannot resist and which will yield larger returns than at any other period of the year.

Troubles of a Man-Hunter.

The following communication depicts a condition with which the general public is quite familiar and which is worth serious examination:

EDITOR TRIBUNE: Mr. W. F. McDowell, who is engaged in scouring the country for workers for one of the largest industrial concerns on the coast, was discussing the demand for labor in his office yesterday.

"In these busy times," he said, "when employers are in most strenuous competition with each other for laborers, the fact that it has been necessary to establish a chain-gang in Oakland is but a last proof that there are some men who will not work, no matter what the remuneration. Several large manufacturing concerns are put to the direst straits in the effort to keep their plants running at their full capacity. One of the largest of these concerns, employing over six hundred workers, maintains an office in this city and two men, whose sole occupation consists of hunting up men willing to work. As the plant is located some forty odd miles in the country, every inducement is offered. The fare is paid, high wages are offered, the board is excellent, and still the demand remains unsupplied: while insolent hoboos beg the lonely housewife for victuals. It costs the company several dollars to land each man at the works, and in addition to this many men, hoboos who merely want a free ride, drop off along the line or work only half a day or so." Mr. McDowell here brought his fist down on the table and emphatically remarked, "Any housewife who feeds the burly tramp who tells a pitiful hardluck story, is doing society a positive injury. We and others stand ready to give any man work at good wages. There is no possible excuse for any able-bodied man being in a destitute condition today, and any man in that condition is, per se, a worthless character. We have men come down to this office every day begging for a dime or a quarter to get a cup of coffee, etc. To such men all I have to do is to offer them a job at the best of wages, and the expression that comes over their faces as they fade away would be ludicrous were it not nauseating. On the other hand, since the San Francisco fire many men are doing laboring work who are capable of better things. Such men are not kept at that class of work long. The large influx of Eastern men is proving an important factor in the situation. Most of these men are good workers, although the irrepressible hobo is everywhere present. As illustrating the personnel of the average group of laborers nowadays, out of twenty-six men hired yesterday, I found two ex-Manila policemen, an ex-transport officer, a young fellow who claimed he left Annapolis Naval Academy owing to failing eyesight, two or three clerks and about a dozen Italians, who are on the whole about the steadiest workers we can get. We give every man a chance, and if you know of any man looking for an opportunity to earn an honest living send him to us. In conclusion I wish to repeat that any one who assists an able-bodied man today is committing a crime against society."

JOHN A. HENSHALL.

Cement, Cal., November 23, 1906.

Contemporaneous and co-existent with an extraordinary demand for labor in the departments of industry, with a scale of wages higher than ever before, able-bodied men are loafing and begging about the streets. Men scarcely able to stand from intoxication will importune pedestrians on the street for money ostensibly to pay for a meal or a bed when work is to be had on every side. These healthy vagrants even ring doorbells and ask for money more in a tone of command than entreaty, scorning the offer of food and often insulting women and feeble men if their insolent requests are not complied with. These fellows should not be permitted to lead a dissolute and idle life on the proceeds of mendicancy. They are a menace to good order, for many of them are criminals who become dangerous when levying peaceful tribute on society fails to satisfy their wants.

It is axiomatic that every loafer lives at somebody's expense. He is either a burden to some individual or on the community at large. Consequently every idler in the city levies a tax on the energies and industry of the public that is not only an imposition but is a direct reward for sloth and mendicancy. Not only that, by supporting able-bodied men in idleness the community is depriving the ranks of labor of badly-needed service. The loafer should therefore be made to go to work, break rock in the chain-gang or leave the city, care being taken, however, that no honest and deserving person in temporary misfortune is treated unjustly. A chance to work should be offered all, and when employment is refused no mercy should be shown the loafer. The spectacle of employers seeking in vain for laborers while able-bodied men are begging on the streets should no longer be presented.

The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce is doing a service to business men the country over in arranging lists of fire insurance companies so as to show the faithful and the "welchers" as revealed by last April's disaster at the Golden Gate.—New York World.

Our Mission in the Philippines.

The San Francisco Chronicle says "no European can apparently be made to understand that the people of the United State do not care a rap about the Philippines, but, on the contrary, consider them an unmitigated nuisance." Then the American people are paying pretty dearly for maintaining a nuisance. What has become of that shabby humbug, "Benevolent Assimilation?" What of the demagogue cry that the American flag must never be pulled down where it has once been hoisted? Is reverence no longer paid to the rank pretense that "trade follows the flag?" The Chronicle is right in one particular at least, the American people do regard the Philippines as an unmitigated nuisance, and would be glad to be rid of them only they are afraid some other nation might find a use for them. We took the Philippines expecting to find them a source of profit; instead, we have found them a source of expense, scandal and political contention. We have made a bad bargain, and only hold to it for fear that Japan or Germany would like to take it off our hands. After forcing Spain to surrender them we said Providence had cast them into our hands. The hypocrisy looked good till we found the islands a bad investment. We have continued to hold the Filipinos in unwilling subjection, however, from a dog-in-the-manger spirit. But whatever the motive inspiring it, the retention of the islands until their inhabitants are fitted for self-government is now a question of national honor. We must civilize and educate the natives, not only as the penalty for a grave political blunder, but as an obligation we cannot discard without dishonor. The incidental complications we must bear with patiently and deal with intelligently and in a spirit of humanity. We entered upon our mission in the spirit of the buccaneer, but we must continue it in the spirit of philanthropy and philosophy. Having at last got our bearings (and dismissed the hope of loot) we will hold to the responsibilities we have assumed with fortitude. It is to be hoped, however, that the lesson taught by this experience will not be in vain. We have enough problems in Hawaii, the Philippines and Porto Rico without taking in Cuba, Santo Domingo and the Danish West Indies to get a still more troublesome lot.

THE PRESS AND RELIGIOUS TEACHING.

EDITOR TRIBUNE: I agree with your correspondent in yesterday's issue, Adelle Williams Wright, that there is today a growing demand for the publication in the daily newspaper, especially the Sunday issue, of matter that will tend to draw the attention of the reader to another side or view of life. This practical, bustling, everyday age has led man to the extreme outer verge of material existence, until he scarcely knows or thinks he possesses anything that he cannot weigh upon the scales or measure with the yardstick; indeed, every man he meets seems to be a walking advertisement of material wares.

Nevertheless, there is an increasing number who believe that they possess something that can neither be weighed nor measured with material instruments, something that will survive the catastrophe of death. This class of readers and thinkers are not as yet sufficiently numerous to sustain a publication of their own, and naturally look to THE TRIBUNE, which is so fair and impartial with all thinkers. Especially since it has so generously invited to its columns articles of interest and of current events. I have no criticism for the religious newspapers, yet they fail to interest the large and growing class of thinkers, and it would seem that there is a large demand for an opportunity for this class to read and express their religious and philosophic ideas.

In my more than four score years I have watched the great changes in religious belief. It would be hard to find a real atheist today while in my boyhood there were many. Indeed, the scoffer and skeptic at the teachings and character of Jesus has vanished, and thousands, who belong to no church, take his place today who admire Jesus' pure loving life and revere his splendid code of ethics. This class believe in a rational continued life after the change called death. This comforting belief has not been brought about by the propaganda of any religious or non-religious cult. It is a growth, the ripening of the genius homo and the fruiting into a consciousness of the real, the unity of the universe and all things therein, a consciousness that sometimes penetrates the infinite etheric ocean of universal knowledge and beholds things such as Paul saw when caught up into the seventh heaven.

Can you not, Mr. Editor, give this class of your Sunday readers a small department for religious and philosophic thought in your valuable Sunday edition?

Respectfully,

A. C. STOWE.

CHIPS FROM OTHER BLOCKS.

The situation in San Francisco has materially cleared up since the election. They are still denouncing one another as thieves and general boodlers down there, but there appears to be something of a weakening in the volume of the outcry and recrimination. One has got so accustomed to discovering politics in every moral breath in San Francisco that the general disposition is to distrust almost everything in the line of reform in that neighborhood. In relation to the cry of "graft" that is heard everywhere the newspapers are doing a deal of floundering. It would not be surprising if in the sum-up it would be found that the depredations have been principally confined to petty transactions in subordinate positions, much the same kind of graft as is found in all large cities. So far no evidence has been uncovered by the press sleuths to justify the wholesale charges of corruption that have been flung in the faces of nearly every official in high authority in the town.—Sacramento Sunday News.

OLD SORES FED AND KEPT OPEN BY IMPURE BLOOD

A great many people have an idea that old sores exist merely because of a diseased condition of the flesh where the ulcer is located. They patiently apply salves, powders, plasters and other external applications, but in spite of all such treatment the place refuses to heal. Whenever a sore or ulcer does not heal readily the blood is at fault; this vital fluid is filled with impurities and poisons which are constantly being discharged into the place, feeding it with noxious matter, which makes it impossible for the sore to heal. Old sores may be the result of an inherited blood taint, or the effects of a long spell of sickness, or again the circulation may be contaminated with the collections of refuse matter which the different members have failed to expel through the channels of nature. Whatever the cause the blood becomes steeped in poison and a cut, bruise, scratch or other wound often develops into a sore, fed and kept up by these impurities, causing it to eat deeper into the surrounding tissue, inflaming, festering and causing pain. External applications can only keep the sore clean; they cannot cure the trouble because they do not reach the blood. S. S. S. cures Old Sores by going to the very bottom of the trouble, driving out the impurities and poisons and purifying and building up the entire circulation. When S. S. S. has removed the cause the blood becomes rich and healthy, the sore begins to heal, new flesh is formed, the place scabs over and is soon permanently healed. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. H. Tidwell, rector of the Church of the Advent in East Oakland. The bride wore a stylish traveling suit of dark blue with hat to match, and was unattended.

Mrs. Pierce is the daughter of William Sopke, who resides at 1266 East Eleventh street, and she has been known as one of the prettiest girls of East Oakland. She has been engaged to Mr. Pierce for some time, but as both wished to postpone their wedding until after the election by which Pierce was chosen County Auditor, the engagement was not announced, and the wedding yesterday came as a great surprise to the friends of both. After their return from the south Mr. and Mrs. Pierce will make their home at the Pierce residence, at 1228 Eighth avenue, which is the wedding present of the father of the groom.

Immediately after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Pierce left for Los Angeles where they will spend their honeymoon.

Representatives of twenty-three colleges of the United States were included in the guest list. The spacious dining hall of the Home Club was appropriately decorated with autumn leaves and branches, the same scheme of decoration being used on the tables.

The luncheon hour was enlivened by the toasts given in honor of the December graduates of Stanford University and the University of California. Miss Frances W. McLean presided as toastmistress and introduced the following speakers, who responded as follows: "Greeting to our Guests," Miss Helen W. Peckham; "The Message of Autumn," Miss Hazel Hobson of the University of California; "Our Social Life," Miss Douglas Whitehead; "The Joy of Doing," Miss Edith Bridges; "The Things We Can Say Today on What We Can Do Tomorrow," Miss Jessica Peckham; "The Word in Season," Mrs. Alexander P. METCALF HAS REPORT READY

Secretary Completes His Investigation of Japanese-American School Problem.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Victor H. Metcalf, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, who went to California by direction of the President to investigate the cause of the exclusion of Japanese children from the schools of San Francisco, has completed his report and will submit it to President Roosevelt immediately upon his arrival in Washington. If the President returns here in time, a Cabinet meeting probably will be held on Tuesday when Metcalf's report will be considered by the President and his advisors, at length.

It is understood that Secretary Metcalf's report will throw no new light on the situation. It will be largely a recital of conditions that exist, and bring home to the administration in an official way that the people of California, as their attitude is expressed through the State and municipal authorities, intend to "stand pat." Metcalf has refused to say anything for publication.

NEW STATUE IS BLESSED

Interesting Services Held Sunday at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Dedicatory services were held in St. Mary's Church, Jefferson street, near Seventh, last night, for the new statue of St. Anthony of Padua. Rev. Father Cottle of San Francisco, who was in charge of the services, blessed and dedicated the statue, and Father Edward Nolin of St. Paul's church of San Pablo, delivered the sermon.

The church was filled to its capacity, and many valuable presents were presented. Father Sesson distributed 200 colored jesses of St. Anthony. Father Sesson had also planned to deliver medals as well as the prints, but the medals failed to arrive.

The statue is Michele Ciani carved, and it is a beautiful piece of art. The face has been modeled so as to express highest intelligence and emotion, and the statue of the child, Jesus, which St. Anthony holds upon one arm, is also an exquisite work.

The shrine and candleabra, which surround the statue, were purchased through contributions made by the congregation. Father Sesson, being indisposed, was unable to sing, as he had planned, and congregational singing was substituted.

GOSSIP FROM THE SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

NOVEL MANNER OF MARRIAGE.

The novel manner of Miss Emily Rosenstirn's marriage with Sidney Joseph did not surprise those who had become used to Miss Rosenstirn's original way of doing things. If she had been married in the regulation manner with lots of preliminary press notices, and the usual thing in gew-gaws and accessories, it would have been quite out of keeping with her character. Miss Rosenstirn has enjoyed the reputation of being the most independent girl in her set. Equally sought after in smart Christian and Jewish society, she never cared much for the merely social side of life. She is a great student and has several languages at her tongue's end. At one time it was rumored that she and Sidney Joseph were collaborating on a play; at another time that she was writing a novel. She is so extremely clever that her friends always expected great things of her. Brought up with her twin brothers very much the same way as if she were also a boy, she was always her father's devoted chum. She discussed politics, medicine and books with him, and he said he had to learn to smoke cigarettes to keep her company. Whenever Miss Emily Rosenstirn's name is mentioned people always dig up the famous appendicitis dinner which she hostessed, and which according to all reports was a most unique affair. Even Europe discussed it. Now that she has changed her name, the dinner will probably be forgotten. —Wasp.

CHAMPIONS OF THEIRS.

One of the ladies in San Francisco who warmly champions the cause of Ruef and Schmitz is Miss Maude Younger, the wealthy daughter of Dr. Younger who has gone in for Socialism. Miss Younger has met both Ruef and Schmitz and has entertained them, and she is in keen sympathy with their work as she believes it to be. Naturally she does not see as Haney sees it, but she, like Cardinal Newman, believes that faith should precede knowledge. Ruef is not, notwithstanding Miss Younger, in any danger of becoming a social lion just yet a while. Miss Younger lives at a club for rich Socialists in New York. —Wasp.

THE STATE FAIR REMOVAL.

The idea of removing the State Fair to Oakland or San Francisco is gaining ground, and Oakland, not to be outdone by San Francisco, has already under consideration the formation of a strong corporation to handle enterprises, such as hotels, exposition halls, and exhibition rooms adjacent to the Agricultural Society's proposed grounds. The establishment of such a fair at Oakland would mean much to that city, as it would help establish Oakland as a wholesale center, which it is not today. An annual fair at San Francisco or Oakland would be a paying institution. An annual fair at Sacramento cannot help being a continual and growing deficit. It is natural for the farmer to visit San Francisco or Oakland once a year, but there is no imaginable reason why any one should ever visit Sacramento, except when forced to do so because of legislative affairs. —News Letter.

BUILD THE SUBWAY.

The shipping business along the Oakland estuary is increasing so rapidly that it is apparent to the casual onlooker. The increase is visible from day to day. The travel on the street cars and the wagon and foot traffic over the bridges connecting Oakland and Alameda increases with every hour that is passing by, and the swamp land that once was deemed well nigh useless is quickly being bought for factory purposes and for railroad yards. The bridges that connect Alameda and Oakland may be classified as conveniences or nuisances. They are a convenience when they are in use. They are a confounded nuisance when they are open. The city fathers of Oakland and Alameda should take immediate steps to remedy the objectionable features by setting aside a certain hour of the day for the passing of lumber schooners, tugs and ships, or a subway should be built to accommodate the trains, wagons and pedestrians. The News Letter has spoken of the project in a recent issue, and, as a result, the matter is now to be taken up by one of the enterprising commercial organizations with a view to bringing about a concert of action. —News Letter.

GRAND JURY IS CLOSE.

"Of all the Grand Juries I have ever covered," said a veteran newspaperman to me the other day, "this Oliver Grand Jury is the tightest. Why, they've got me and the rest of the fellows completely buffaloed. You can't get a line on anything until they let you get it. We are kept guessing all right, all right." It is a fact that the present Grand Jury is conducted along the lines contemplated by the law. In the past, every newspaper in town had one or more "leaks" on the successive Grand Juries, but it is not so now, even when the Grand Jury and the papers are in hearty accord. No news from the jury room gets out until the authorities want it out. The horde of newspaper men outside of the jury room on every day of meeting is eagerly on the alert, but with no avail. It is a "tight jury," truly, as the reporters all say. —News Letter.

COSTLY GOWNS FOR MRS. THAW.

Mrs. Harry K. Thaw has had seven new dresses made, at a cost of $3600, and will wear them at her husband's trial—not all at once, of course. Thaw has ordered three suits of clothes, so that he, too, may gladden the eyes of the spectators. It is to be a gala event, this Thaw trial, with high-priced lawyers, a millionaire defendant, and the gayly-gowned wife of the latter—also Truxton Beale, who will be able to sympathize with Thaw, knowing from sad experience how trying a thing it is to be placed on trial for a cowardly shooting. Thaw, having more money than Beale, his chances of escape are proportionately greater. —News Letter.

DR. JORDAN, FISH EXPERT.

Dr. Jordan is a fish expert. How would he answer the following:

When Stanford students shout and And drink stuff worse than Vichy, Why should not Dr. Jordan call Their manner somewhat fishy?

It would be interesting to note just where the refining influence of the co-ed comes into play. Not only have they been unable to prevent the shameful and unworthy hoodlumism of the last few weeks at the universities, but in Berkeley one of the sorority houses was actually invaded by a band of half-drunken students. Co-ed refinement is very much of a myth.

Justice on the east side of the bay certainly wears blinders that obscure the vision, if they do no worse. Thugs, handymen and porch-climbers have speedy trial, and in the event of a delay, there is always provision made for them securing freedom on a bond. When, however, the person arrested has no "pull" or is otherwise handicapped in the contest with the Oakland authorities, there is no courtesy shown, and seldom, if ever, mercy—unless the culprit has a vote and election is near.

An instance of this lack of mercy came to light a few days ago in Judge Samuel's court, when Lulu Ellis, who has been confined in the noisome city prison for the last two months, wrote a letter to his honor, begging him to take pity on her and "put her on trial." She was arrested originally for vagrancy and had the temerity to plead not guilty. Since then she has been kept in close confinement in the hope, evidently, that she would change her mind and come out and admit that she was what the policeman arresting her imagined. She is young, a bit pretty, and up till a few days ago fully convinced that she was innocent of any wrong doing. Now, after two months of waiting for a trial, she is ready to plead guilty to anything, so they let her know that he has a definite length of time to serve. Her letter to Judge Samuel may contribute somewhat to the removal of the blinders from the eyes of Justice on the eastern shores of the bay. —News Letter.

BERKELEY BOYS ON TROUBLE.

There was another outbreak of "gentlemanly" conduct at the State University. As usual, the offenders were fraternity men. On the campus, they have an adage that when anything in particular offensively happens in the college town, the guilty ones will be found in the confines of some exclusive Greek letter society.

According to a complaint lodged with Chief of Police Vollmer the members of the Kappa Sigma organization are hoodlums, rowdies, cads, and scrubs. And the complainants ought to know, for they are of the Greek letter cult themselves. They consist of the entire membership of the ultra exclusive Kappa Gamma Sorority.

From the details of the complaint, it seems that the cultured members of the Kappa Sigma gathered around the doors of the sorority and indulged in obscenities just to show their college spirit. They followed this up with the introduction of four cows—the milking kind—on the porch. Of course, the bovines were not used to such high-toned association, and did not know how to behave. Their table manners were simply awful. Bad as the cows were, however, the members of the sorority say they prefer them to Kappa Sigma men—though the word used wasn't men. It sounded a little like Darwin's lost relation.

While these evidences of high thinking were being exploited in Berkeley, the theater-goers of Oakland were being treated to a dose of culture as put up in that other home for the feeble-minded, called a university. The Stanford label was on the can, and the contents of the can drove practically every lady from the Liberty Theater, and finally a suspension of the play. The curtain was rung down in the middle of the act, after the stage manager had faced a bombardment of over-ripe eggs and garden truck while trying to explain the need of having quiet during the progress of the play.

If there had been evidence of wit in the alleged guying of the play and the actors, there might have been somewhat of an excuse for the outbreak. There was no wit, nor was there anything approaching it. Rowdiness of the type that characterizes the Sunday picnics of the south of Market street denizen had the call. Every one of the women who took part in the drama was treated as if she had come out for the purpose of selling herself to the highest bidder.

And it was Barrie's "Admirable Crichton" that held the boards. Higher education was certainly sent up a notch in California by the appreciation exhibited. It was estimated by an impartial witness, who is a bit inclined to be scientific as well as mathematical, that if the entire student body of the institution, the members of which guyed the play, were put to the task, it might be possible for them to produce one act—that the least worthy—of "The Admirable Crichton"—if given an infinity of time. —News Letter.

PAYING ALIMONY HIS FORTE.

It is evident that paying alimony may soon be classed as a habit, like morphine, whisky and golf. Some men even carry it so far as to make it a vice. One who is headed that way is J. L. Wilson of Oakland, who accepted the task last Saturday of paying for another woman's board and lodging by the process of marrying her, despite the fact that he had gone through the experience twice before, and was wearing himself out trying to keep up with his engagements to cash alimony warrants.

Beginning early in life he accepted the gift of the gods, and learned afterwards that it was like the gifts of the Greeks to the Trojans. It cost him a neat sum monthly for the legal privilege of unloading. Then he listened to the voice of the gods again, and they handed him a package in the guise of Miss Mary C. Woods. The unloading process followed again in due course, ditto the alimony warrants. It also took the household furniture and property at 114 Chase street to buy off this second Mrs. Wilson—that's all.

The third whispering of the gods took place when Mr. Wilson saw Amelia Witke of Calistoga. Miss Witke that was, now the third Mrs. Wilson, that's all, is 22, and was the belle of her native town. Mr. Wilson that's not all, says that if he loses his present mate he will not listen to the gods when they whisper again. It is a foregone conclusion that he will, however, for he is only 46 years of age, and he has the alimony habit.

CHEERY NEWS TO ALAMEDA.

The cheering news comes to the town of Alameda that the Southern Pacific is to electrify the tracks running into that town and put on trains similar to those in use on the Key Route. This will make Alameda as close to San Francisco as Berkeley is, and also make it far more desirable than at present for residence purposes. Lack of proper transportation facilities has held Alameda back for a long while. There is a large amount of vacant land there, and there is no reason, in view of the Southern Pacific's announcement, why it should not go up in price. Alameda is no longer a vaudeville joke. —News Letter.

NO VOICE, SAYS NOTHING.

A rather amusing incident occurred at the meeting of the Oakland Ruskin Club a few days ago. Professor Thorstein Veblen, of Stanford University, was present. Now Professor Veblen is perhaps beyond peradventure the greatest economist in the United States today. His admirers say that he is the greatest in the world, and there are more than slight grounds for their opinion. The professor entered amid much applause. He sat silent through the feast, and towards the end of the performance, some one timidly suggested that possibly the great teacher had a few words to add to the matters discussed. The professor arose. Necks were craned, and intense expectation marked the men of the books and the men of the platform who were assembled. The professor made an elaborate introduction. Interest deepened. The professor spoke: "I have nothing to say, and no voice to say anything with." And the professor sat down. —News Letter.

STILL SINGING THOSE VERSES.

Charles K. Field, a prominent clubman of San Francisco, who is called the poet laureate of Stanford University, told a story at a recent alumni gathering, which illustrates the character of "Bill" Irwin, now managing editor of McClure's magazine. It will be remembered that Irwin was expelled from Stanford two weeks before his graduation for composing, objectionable verses about certain members of the faculty. Mr. Field visited his friend in the East recently, and during a conversation on old college days, asked him if he ever felt bitter toward the people who were responsible for his graduation-by-request, and if he ever regretted writing the verses. "Bitter?" answered Irwin. "Never! And sorry! I should say not. I only hope the boys are still singing those verses." And they are.

The Stanford campus is soon to be opened up to automobiles, a thing strictly forbidden up to now, and something which will be heard with rejoicing by most of the local bubbling fraternity. For years, the gates to the grounds have been ornamented with sign-boards warning all autoists to keep off. These are soon to be removed, and the chug-chug is to be heard where it never was before. The change is attributed to the common sense of the new regime at the University, though some of the wise ones say that Treasurer Lathrop is to become the proud possessor of two new cars. —News Letter.

CARUSO IS UP AGAINST IT.

The charges against the tenor, Caruso, if proved, will likely end his professional career. For a singer to have an affair with another man's wife, and to be shot at by the wrathful husband, would be a good advertisement for him—and to be desperately wounded would enhance his glory. But to be caught "mashing" women, making "dem-a googla eye" at the opposite sex—including a negress—at the monkey-cage in the zoo, is enough to ruin any man's career. It puts him on the level with the depraved mashers who stand in front of cigar stores. —News Letter.

FREE LUNCH IS NO MORE.

Gone is the free lunch, and great is the woe of the impecunious hungry. No more is the foaming tankard supplemented by hot, juicy frankfurters, ham sandwiches, cold corned-beef and pickles. The gilded palaces no longer offer enchiladas, beans, fritters, celery, olives, cheese, pie, radishes, hot roast beef and half a dozen other appetizing dishes with a high-ball. For the most part, the saloon now is a place wherein to drink. It was different before the fire. Then the greedy one could get a free meal with a drink—unless the bartender happened to be too watchful. The high-license has put an end to that, except in the case of a few saloons which have the free lunch of old. It is indeed a sad blow, and makes the rounder realize that the fire was indeed a calamity. —News Letter.

MRS. TAYLOR OWNS THE LACE.

Not since the days when Anglo-American society was stirred by the light-fingered escapades of a well-known San Francisco woman has local society tried so hard to parse the word "kleptomaniac." The charge which Mrs. McCutcheon, the Oakland dressmaker, preferred the other day against Mrs. Charles Lyman Bent has set polite tongues wagging and, to the credit of Mrs. Bent's friends, let it be said that they one and all denounce the publicity given the affair as unwarrantably malicious. Everyone has been wondering about the ownership of the lace Mrs. Bent is accused of taking. According to private information it belongs to Mrs. Taylor who, before her marriage was one of the Kittles—a name high in church and social history. When Mrs. Taylor discovered that the lace had mysteriously disappeared from the dressmaker's and the modiste whispered her suspicions, Mrs. Taylor outlined a campaign for the recovery of the lace. Mrs. McCutcheon called upon Mrs. Bent and the latter finally produced the lace, which she insisted her little daughter carried away from the dressmaking establishment.

Why couldn't the affair have rested under the rose when the lace was returned? queries Mrs. Grundy. It looks as though Mrs. Taylor had forgotten the Christian precepts of the church-going forbears and as though the dressmaker's charity were cut on the bias. Even straight-front morality did not demand rushing into public print with the disgraceful story. The lace was returned—wrapped in a very plausible explanation, but the modiste had to further humiliate Mrs. Bent by making the story public. —Town Talk.

SOCIETY WOMEN AS A GRAND JURY.

A number of society women were discussing the affair the other day at an informal tea. "Let's suppose Ethel Bent is a kleptomaniac," said a wise young woman—"the motive of her necessity is entirely lacking in her case so the action could not possibly be attributed to anything but the diseased instincts of kleptomaniac. Ethel is accused of taking the lace and she finally produces it and the dressmaker returns it to Mrs. Taylor. Even if one can believe that she really did knowingly take the lace, isn't there more pity and excuse for her involuntary peccadillo than the voluntary and pitiless exposure which Mrs. Taylor has caused?" —Town Talk.

ALL KINDS OF EXPLANATIONS.

Mrs. Charles Lyman Bent is a daughter of the late A. A. Cohen, the well-known attorney. She has been visiting her mother at Fernside, the beautiful family home in Alameda. Mrs. Bent and her eight-year-old daughter left for Fort Crook, Nebraska, to join Captain Bent the very day that she was accused of taking the lace. Her story of the affair is that at one of her fittings at the modiste's she was accompanied by her little girl, who asked the dressmaker if she could have some of the samples lying around the room for doll clothes and the child, unknown to the mother, took the lace which belonged to Mrs. Taylor. But Mrs. McCutcheon, the dressmaker, says she saw Mrs. Bent deliberately hide the lace in her stocking, and was so astonished at the time that she said nothing. And Mrs. Taylor believes that Mrs. Bent helped herself to her lace. So society can believe whom it chooses. —Town Talk.

SARTORIAL RAFFLES.

A fashionable dressmaker on this side of the bay tells me that things are frequently "lifted" from her shop by smart customers. "Usually we get the articles back," she said, "by threatening exposure, but of course we would rather lose most things than suffer the notoriety of scandal. Several months ago one of my oldest customers missed a diamond pin which she had removed for her fitting. We hunted high and low but not a sparkle could we find. The other day a society woman came into my place to order a gown, and fancy my surprise at seeing that very pin fastening her collar. I remembered that this woman had been in the house the day the pin was lost, and in spite of her wealth and social position I knew that she was guilty. So as I unfasted her collar, I quietly said: 'I will return this pin to So and So, to whom it belongs, and save you trouble. You need not fear that I will divulge your name.' The woman did not even pretend to cover her guilt. But with fear and trembling hastily fled from the place. She had the temerity to wear the pin into my shop, thinking I would not recognize it. The person from whom she stole it is a woman not recognized by society, whereas the kleptomaniac is in the smart set. Of course she has never been near me since I discovered the pin, and she appreciates my protection of her name by saying 'No, I don't get my clothes there any more. She's not the dressmaker she used to be. Haven't you noticed what rags she turns out? I wouldn't send them to a rummage sale! And then such queer people patronize her now!' I wonder which is the 'queer' one, the rich society woman who steals and then traduces her protector, or the woman who quietly receives her pin without even asking the name of the thief so that she could brand her?" —Town Talk.

PARIS MATRIMONIAL AGENTS.

Since the Castellane divorce began, according to my Paris correspondent, certain local society papers there have made a concerted attack on the American colony. Several of its members have been selected for drastic punishment, notably Miss Fanny Reed, who for some time has held a unique position in the French capital. Miss Reid is plied to illustrate the American greed for dollars. The French critics declare that it has been considered not enough in America to be rich, but that a high social position and a noble name being essential to happiness, old Europe is called upon to provide husbands with titles and good social positions for American girls. This of course has meant a mint of money to those who have taken in hand the management of such affairs. It is charged, that in order to handle this very lucrative business, quite a number of bright, merry American society women, with a streak of business talent, have for a long time made Paris their home, secretly act as brokers in providing ambitious American heiresses with titled French husbands. Miss Reid is cited as one of the matrimonial agents and the Castellane-Gould match is acknowledged to be a piece of her shrewd work. —Town Talk.

MILAN EDITOR WITH CARUSO

"Il Tempo" Lays Tenor's Late Trouble to Ignorance of Customs.

MILAN, Italy, Nov. 24.—Of Caruso's conviction in New York, Il Tempo, a newspaper which usually reflects public opinion, says:

"Until now, operatic artists have always enjoyed a certain immunity; exception has been made in their favor in the application of the penal code. We recall a famous singer who used to manifest at once the depth of his artistic sentiments and the degeneracy of his nature and manner by affecting ladies in the public streets. Had our Italian gendarmes taken him into custody, had they been inspired by the same ethical notions as Yankee policemen, no magistrate could possibly have overlooked this singer's declarations and actions."

Our Italian ladies have always looked with indulgent eyes upon the industry of professional artists as though like hunchbacks, they dispense good luck.

"I fear Caruso has not comprehended the vast difference between his social environment in Italy and in the United States; he does not realize the gravity of his position. In Italy, a similar affair, so far from arousing public indignation would result in (advertising) puffs for a professional singer."

"An instance of this was the extraordinary ovation given to the famous tenor, Alexander Bonci, at the opera house in Brescia. It was his first appearance there after he had betrayed the hospitality of one of the best families in Florence and abducted a young girl. Although a married man, he fled with her in an automobile to Switzerland and lived with her more than a month. There, under the pressure of international law, he abandoned her under the crudest, most hardened circumstances."

PUMPS CIDER OUT OF CISTERN

FAIRFIELD, Nov. 25.—If the home of Thomas G. Shaw in Jasper township is not made the scene for his friends this fall and winter, it will be because society will have just the "old" one.

Not being able to satisfactorily market a bountiful crop of apples from his large orchard at a price that would not him proper returns, he has dug a cistern 10 feet in diameter and 12 feet deep, had it properly cemented and a pump installed, and is making the entire apple crop into cider and storing it in the big underground jug.

A chemical treatment to keep the cider from becoming too "hard" makes his big cider cistern the storehouse for temperance goods.

PIONEER JOURNALIST DIES IN AFFLUENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—A copy of the will of George K. Fitch, a pioneer in journalism on the Pacific coast, today was filed with the register of wills for the district. Mr. Fitch was a personal friend of Senator Hearst and Senator Stanford. He established the Call and the Bulletin newspapers of San Francisco. The estate is estimated to be worth $500,000.

The battleship squadron for sea consist of the Suffren, La Galissonniere, La Gueule, La Bourvil and La Galissonniere. Admiral Touchard came to Paris today and had a long conference with Minister of Marine Thomson.

Women in Our Hospitals

Appalling Increases in the Number of Operations Performed Each Year—How Women May Avoid Them.

Going through the hospitals in our large cities one is surprised to find such a large proportion of the patients lying on those snow-white beds women and girls, who are either awaiting or recovering from serious operations. Why should this be the case? Simply because they have neglected themselves. Female troubles are certainly on the increase among the women of this country—they creep upon them unawares, but every one of these patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the organs or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation. When these symptoms manifest themselves, do not drag along until you are obliged to go to the hospital and submit to an operation—but remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved thousands of women from surgical operations.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

SUPERVISORS APPROVE BOND FOR PAVING BID

Six Applications for Saloon Licenses Are Referred to the Committee.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors this morning, all the members were present.

The bond of E. H. and A. L. Stone for the paving of East Fourteenth street in Brooklyn Township, in the sum of $125,000, with the Aetna Indemnity Company as surety, was approved.

County Surveyor Prather reported that the Ransome Construction Company had done work on the Foothills road since the last estimate, on October 20th, 1906, amounting to $11,198.86. The cost of the work on the road was $181,350.27 and of this sum, $143,887.89 has been paid. The report was filed.

Applications for saloon licenses were made as follows: Andrews & Hughes, Sunol; Alfred P. Sunol; Emil Richter, San Leandro; and Jones avenue; Thomas Paustino, Alvarado. They were referred to the License Committee.

A map of Endicott Tract was filed. R. J. Dowling, Frank W. Arnold and twenty-five others asked the Board to accept Nudley avenue as a county road. The petition was referred to the County Surveyor.

Dr. Clark, superintendent of the County Infirmary, reported that there were 366 inmates on the roll of that institution at the present time. Filed.

A resolution was adopted cancelling the sale of property of T. E. Blinn because of the alleged non-payment of poll-tax, as the owner of the property is a woman.

The request of the county clerk for a metallic file case for books of record in every year was granted.

The resolution of Dr. Clark of the County Infirmary for supplies was granted.

The requisition of the county superintendent of schools for examination papers was granted.

The resolution of the Oakland & San Jose Railroad company asked for a street railway franchise on Claremont avenue, commencing at the northern limits of the city of Oakland and running thence to the southern boundary line of Berkeley, beginning on the eastern corner of Berkeley, 277 feet from Domingo avenue and running on Russell street and a private right of way 150 feet in width.

The action of the Board of Supervisors was based upon the sentiment contained in a resolution which was adopted that the late election proved beyond question the superiority of voting machines over the Australian ballot system, they performed their functions with reliability, did not in any degree interfere with the independent action of the voter, that scratching party candidates was as prevalent on the machines as well as with the ballot in question; that the counting of the votes did not allow fraud and the result was immediately ascertainable after the closing of the polls.

WOULD KEEP DISTRICT FREE FROM SALOONS

Residents of East Fourteenth Street and Vicinity Present Protest to the Supervisors.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors this morning opposition to saloons on East Fourteenth street and other thoroughfares was voiced in a protest which was signed by seventeen people. The signers were W. J. Reilly, M. R. Pedrick, M. Johnson, J. D. Durkage, E. A. Mould, L. E. Hoch, Frank Hart, James L. Thayer, O. H. Moore, J. E. Allen, Charles Saglaw, Chris N. Boree, N. Shaw, J. H. Stanley, T. F. Stanley, N. Johnson, A. Thayer.

The protest was expressed in the following words: "We, the undersigned, hereby petition the Board of Supervisors to grant us a permit or license to sell liquor or intoxicating drinks on any property lying on East Fourteenth street, (usually designated San Leandro road) or any street or avenues between and including Fitch avenue and Hawley avenue.

"This will not work hardship on any one as there are saloons within reasonable distance for those who wish to patronize them. Our desire is to preserve the present admirable home surroundings for our women and children. Trusting this will receive your favorable consideration, and thanking you in advance, we are, etc."

The avenues included in the protest are Fitch avenue and Murray avenue. The communication was filed.

Leaves for Washington and Perkins Will Follow Tomorrow.

Congressman Joseph R. Knowland left today for Washington, D. C., to enter upon his duties in Congress. Senator George C. Perkins will leave for Washington tomorrow.

NEW MORGUE FOR OAKLAND

Governor-Elect Tisdale Names Quarters for Office in the City.

Dr. Tisdale, coroner elect, has decided to locate the morgue in the undertaking establishment of E. J. Finney, whose place of business is on Sixteenth street, just off San Pablo avenue.

Mr. Finney is a popular and successful man of business and stands high in the community. He is prominent in the order of Elks and is a close personal friend of Dr. Tisdale. Mr. Finney is in entire harmony with Dr. Tisdale's determination to have the morgue conducted in a manner above reproach.

The following letters cannot fail to bring hope to despairing women.

Miss Ruby Mushrush, of East Chicago, Ind., writes:

"I have been a great sufferer with irregular periods and female trouble, and about three months ago the doctor, after using the X-Ray on me, said I had an abscess and would have to have an operation. My mother wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a last resort, and it not only saved me from an operation but made me entirely well."

Mrs. Alice Berryhill, of 313 Boyce Street, Chattanooga, Tenn., writes:

"Three years ago life looked dark to me. I had ulceration and inflammation of the female organs and was in a serious condition. My health was completely broken down and the doctor told me that if I was not operated upon I would die within six months. I told him I would have no operation but would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He tried to influence me against it but I sent for the medicine that same day and began to use it faithfully. Within five days I felt relief but was not entirely cured until I used it for some time."

"Your medicine is certainly fine. I have induced several friends and neighbors to take it and I know more than a dozen who had female trouble and who today are as well and strong as I am from using your Vegetable Compound."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, invites all sick women to write her for free advice and medicine have restored thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Editor of TRIBUNE—Dear Sir: Seeing that the Southern Pacific contemplates many changes in their road, I would like to suggest an improvement through your paper that would be greatly appreciated by the residents of Alameda, as well as the people of Oakland, as now is the time to improve and boom our city. The change is this: To make the stopping point of the Seventh street line, between Broadway and Webster street. As it is now, it blocks Washington street and also blocks the Alameda electric line many times a day, which is a big nuisance to the crossing on Alameda, and is compelled to wait as long as fifteen minutes at the crossing on an Alameda car. If they would change they would not block or interfere with any body. Hoping you will give this some attention, and thanking you for the same, I remain, yours truly, JOHN ROGERS.

Oakland, November 26.

The residents of Eleeth avenue take a pride in improving their property. They know that Roeth has used his lot as a depot for old lumber and hay and as a stable ground for his teams. A large lot of lumber and hay and a few other things are scattered about the place. The other end the three shanties are huddled. All are weatherbeaten and grimy, and one has but three sides and part of a roof.
